U.N., Gizenga Forces Unite Against Cult

Troops Combined
In Drive To Mop Up
Fanatic Terrorists

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—United Nations and Gizenga Congolese soldiers launched a joint military operation Sunday to try to mop up roaming bands of fanatics terrorizing whites in Kivu Province, which has fallen into anarchy.

A heavily armed force of 150 Malayan troops and 50 Congolese soldiers was organized at the U.N. base at Kindu for the 200-mile drive against the pagan terrorists, who seem to be descendants—at least sociologically—of the jungle Leopard Men, killers all.

The military column is expected to take 24 hours to reach the Kasongo area, where the wild bow and arrow gangs are concentrated and where about 30 white persons are believed to be virtually at the mercy of the fanatics.

Several Hundred In Cult

It is the first time U. N. troops and soldiers owing allegiance to the leftist Stanleyville regime of Antoine Gizenga have cooperated on this scale. U. N. authorities are hopeful it may prove a major factor in ending chaos and lawlessness in Kivu.

A U. N. spokesman put the strength of the cult around Kasongo at several hundred. They are armed with bows and arrows, barbed lances and homemade guns fashioned out of steel tubing and door bolts. Around their heads they wear strips of leopard skin, and their professed intention is to kill all whites.

A U. N. spokesman described the cultists as Kartelites, but this is a loose term, and experienced Congo experts believe the gangs belong to a sect known as Kiluawa. This is a mafia-like organization which in the past is known to have indulged in witchcraft and human sacrifice. It aims to rule by magic powers and during the Belgian colonial regime was heavily suppressed.

"Terrorist" Group

Members of Kiluawa believe that by killing a human being the strength of the victim passes to the murderer. Witch doctors of the gruesome cult are looked upon by their followers as being immortal and immune to the white man's bullets.

A U. N. spokesman described the Kasongo gangs as a "terrorist group, unruly and unlawful." Up to now, he said, the United Nations has had no information that any whites in the remote Kasongo area have been killed. But the roving gangs are terrorizing the local Congolese population.

250 Profs Urge End To Red Probe Unit

NEW YORK (AP)—A statement urging abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities was released Sunday by the American Civil Liberties Union. It carried signatures of 250 American college and university professors.

The statement said the committee has "repeatedly undermined the freedoms essential for national well-being" and "continues to abridge citizens' rights of free speech and association."

The professors who signed the statement are actively engaged in teaching at 79 colleges and universities, the ACLU said.

Rep. Reece, 71, Dies Of Cancer

Ex-GOP Chief In 18th House Term

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tennessee Rep. B. Carroll Reece, 71, former Republican national chairman and long a power in that party, died Sunday of lung cancer.

Reece entered the U. S. Navy Medical Center at Bethesda, Md. in January for treatment of what then was believed pleurisy but which proved to be cancer.

He remained in the hospital for a while and underwent minor surgery. Late in February Reece left the hospital but continued to undergo treatment at his hotel suite. He re-entered the hospital, however, last March 9 in weakened condition. Death came at 6:55 a. m.

Despite his illness, Reece made several trips to the Capitol for committee meetings and votes in the House. He left the hospital once to cast a vote with the minority against the proposal of Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., to enlarge the House Rules Committee of which Reece was a member.

Reece's death left the House lineup at 172 Republicans and 260 Democrats, with five vacancies.

One of the members of the staunchly conservative faction of the Republican party, Reece served as GOP national chairman from 1946 to 1949. Under his direction the party captured Con-

Hillary Group First To Climb "Killer Peak"

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Four members of Sir Edmund Hillary's Himalayan winter expedition have conquered the previously unclimbed 22,300-foot "Killer Peak," Ama Dablam, near Mt. Everest, the government of Nepal reported Sunday.

The four were a Briton, two New Zealanders and B. C. Bishop of the United States. One Sherpa guide was injured in the difficult descent last week and flown to Katmandu from a new landing strip in the Everest region.

Two Britons died 21,000 feet up Ama Dablam in a 1959 expedition to the mountain.

Nuclear Safety Hearings Slated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee Sunday announced hearings to emphasize the need for better safety controls over use of nuclear power and materials.

The formal sessions will start at a still undesignated date next month. In advance, the committee has taken under study three approaches to the growing problem of regulating the growing atomic industry.

The chairman, Rep. Chet Hollifield, D-Calif., said in a statement that the proposals range from minor alterations within the AEC to the creation of an entirely separate and autonomous agency recommended by the University of Michigan Atomic Energy Research Project.

Staff experts of the committee have completed their own study that will form the basis of the forthcoming hearings, but Hollifield said that his inquiry was called to get the "best thinking of industry, labor and government officials."

The report carried such items as these: Frilly fixtures for soldiers who rarely shave themselves, hot water systems that are unused because they are not understood and walk-in refrigerators for meat that is daily slaughtered, cooked and eaten on the spot. This last, a part of Moslem religious belief.

The committee endorsed the study made by its investigators who found that the camp at Khariar, to house the 1st Pakistan Armored Division, cost $65 million, far more than originally estimated.

They were particularly critical of its location, jam up against the Indian border but separated by two major rivers and miles of rough terrain from the northwest frontier "where the danger of a Soviet attack appears to be greatest."

The committee blamed some of the extravagance at Khariar on a misplaced military missionary zeal to change Pakistani "hygienic and dietary habits."

gress in the 1946 election—the Congress which then President Harry S. Truman was to assail in 1948 as a "do-nothing" Congress.

One of the more senior members of Congress, Reece was serving his 18th term—not consecutive—in the House. His service was interrupted by one defeat in 1930 and again when he gave up his seat to be party chairman. He ran unsuccessfully for the Senate against Democrat Estes Kefauver in 1948.

In World War I Reece, as a lieutenant commanding an infantry battalion of the 26th Division, was cited for extraordinary courage and heroism under fire. His awards included the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Croix de Guerre.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Wednesday at St. John's Episcopal Church in Johnson City, Tenn. Burial will be in the Monte Vista Cemetery at Johnson City.

Atom Test Ban Talks Resume On Urgent Note

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—American, British and Soviet experts made final preparations Sunday night for resumption of nuclear test-ban negotiations, haunted by the realization that time is running out for them.

On Tuesday negotiations for the three powers will renew their attempt to conclude a treaty prohibiting atomic and hydrogen weapon tests, with provision for enforcement. They face a hard task.

After 2½ years of groping toward each other's positions, they still have not reached agreement on the major problem of inspection and control.

Latest scientific information tends to make enforcement of a ban more difficult to accomplish than was at first believed, but world public opinion keeps haggling all three powers to complete the treaty.

Beyond these factors is an element of even greater importance—one which governs the thinking of all three delegations.

Every month which goes by brings nearer the time when the world will be crowded with nuclear powers. Once the chance of controlling the spread of atomic weapons is lost, the whole task of general disarmament takes on an air of hopelessness.

The three-power nuclear treaty negotiations opened in Geneva Oct. 31, 1958. Since then France has developed its own atomic devices. Several other countries, some of them relatively small, are believed capable of doing the same thing.

The treaty which the three powers are seeking to attain will remain meaningless unless it is signed by France and by potential nuclear nations—in particular Communist China.

Spurred on by President Kennedy, the two Western powers have put together a new negotiating position designed to deal with half a dozen major points of difference. American and British experts went over this program comma by comma in a series of weekend consultations.

The aim now is to try to smoke out the Russians, test their sincerity and, if possible, conclude a treaty in the next two or three months. There is an atmosphere of cautious optimism in the Western camp.

PARIS (AP)—Nothing seemed to go right at the arrival reception Sunday for James M. Gavin, new U. S. ambassador to France.

But Gavin, smiling easily after a nervous start, moved through the confusion at St. Lazare Railroad station with diplomatic aplomb.

The ambassador, his wife and four attractive daughters arrived on the boat train from Le Havre, where they debarked earlier in the day from the liner United States.

Carefully laid arrival plans went awry from the start. A planning error put the official French greeting party, embassy officials, newsmen and photographers at the wrong spot on the platform. The ambassador, looking out of the open train window, seemed startled by the sight of some 200 persons trotting after his train.

Dying Winter Dumps Snow On Southwest

Power Disrupted,
Roads Closed; Five
Die In Plane Crash

By The Associated Press

The last storm of winter tossed high winds and up to a foot of snow at sections of the Southwest Sunday.

Several roads were drifted shut just 24 hours before the arrival of spring at 2:32 p. m. CST Monday.

A foot of snow disrupted power service in Tulsa, Tex. But the snow soon began to melt, and farmers rejoiced.

"This is a life saver," said Lewis Redmon, a wheat planter seven miles west of Tulsa.

"Before the snow we hadn't had an inch of moisture this year. It's worth a million dollars or more to the farmers in this (Swisher) County."

Plane Crashes In Storm

Five men from El Paso were killed when their private plane crashed 17 miles southeast of Signal Peak in the rugged Guadalupe Mountains area of Far West Texas.

Two persons died in a two-car collision on a rain-slicked highway near Gering, Neb.

Winds with gusts up to 45 miles per hour reduced visibility to zero in Borger, Tex.

U. S. 66 was closed at Adrian, about 60 miles west of Amarillo, Tex., and two buses and a number of cars and trucks were stranded there. U. S. 60 was closed at Hereford, southwest of Amarillo.

Up to five inches of snow piled up in the Oklahoma Panhandle. Drifts up to a foot in depth formed on U. S. 287 southeast of Boise City, Okla.

Storm Moves Into Kansas

Heavy snow warnings were issued for southwestern Kansas, western Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle and the South Plains region of Texas.

The snow moved into Kansas and rain fell farther east.

Snow continued to fall in Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska. Denver received more than 10 inches since Friday, Cheyenne got nearly 9 inches, and heavier amounts fell in the nearby mountains.

While the plains storm rolled East, rain and ice sketched a foul weather pattern across most of the country.

Freezing rain dumped by a storm swirling up the Ohio Valley coated parts of Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Ribicoff Says AMA Raises Bogus Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff Sunday accused the American Medical Association of trying to infect the Kennedy administration's medical care program with a bogus issue of socialized medicine.

Ribicoff said many physicians are afraid to support the program because the AMA "exercises very strong sanctions against individual doctors who speak up their mind."

Doctors are in no way involved in the administration proposal to provide health care for the aged through the Social Security System, Ribicoff said in a televised interview (ABC—Issues and Answers). Those proposals deal with costs of hospital, nursing home and out-patient care, he added, but the AMA seeks to spread the impression that doctors would be controlled.

After the train stopped, a carefully placed reception line was washed away in a sea of milling gendarmes, photographers and onlookers.

As Gavin stepped off the train, Emanuel de Casteja, deputy chief of protocol for the French Foreign Office, was still pushing his way past a ring of photographers to extend the official greeting of the French government.

Behind Gavin came his wife Jeanne, their four daughters, and the family dog, a big black and white collie. While dignitaries waited, Gavin lifted the dog from the train steps and set it on the platform.

Gavin, for a moment, was outshone by his family. Photographers almost ignored him in the rush to get a shot of the four girls, Caroline, 15, Patricia, 11, Aileen, 9, and Chloe, 6.

Then Gavin passed the dog's leash to an embassy aide, who tugged the dog to the sidelines.

"What's his name?" asked a woman in a mink stole.

"I don't know," said the aide, nervously patting the big animal. The dog emitted a low, undiplomatic growl.

Back at the train, Gavin was shaking hands with high-ranking embassy officials, their wives and several generals and admirals who had managed to filter through the mob. Gavin used to be a U. S. Army general.

Then Gavin and the procession

Albanian Army, Administration Purge Reported

BELGRADE (AP)—The Yugoslav Communist party newspaper Borba reported Sunday night a purge of the army and administration is under way in Communist Albania.

According to Borba, Temo Sejku, an Albanian navy commander, and a "series of other leading personalities from the army and administration" appear to have been arrested.

The paper said Macho Chomo, minister of agriculture and member of the Albanian Communist party's Central Committee, has disappeared.

Chomo is the husband of another Central Committee member, Liri Belishova, who was expelled from the party along with Kocho Tasho, chairman of the Revision Committee, in a purge late last year.

Borba said there had been no public explanation why Chomo was relieved from his duties.

"Simply, instead of him, another person is mentioned as minister of agriculture," the newspaper said.

The Borba report followed recent information from Albania that two officials of the Foreign Ministry were arrested on charges of spying for the Soviet Union.

The purge results from the struggle of the pro-Red Chinese and pro-Soviet factions in the Albanian Communist party, observers of Communist affairs here believe.

Bomb Wrecks Jeep

HAVANA (AP)—A bomb exploded early Sunday in an unoccupied jeep assigned to a Cuban army lieutenant, destroying the vehicle and shattering the windows of a nearby food shop. The jeep had been parked on the street overnight. No casualties were reported.

Swallows Return To Capistrano

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP)—The swallows came back to Capistrano Sunday and found about 2,000 early birds watching for them.

The crowd gathered in the crisp morning hours to await the birds' return from South America, by legend always taking place on St. Joseph's Day, March 19.

And, although a few dozen swallows were around the mission Saturday—described as scouts by longtime residents—hundreds flew in Sunday soon after the vanguard was spotted at 5:50 a. m.

More hundreds will arrive over the next few weeks, operating on a less rigid timetable than Sunday's arrivals.

Wrong Mixture Kills 5th Baby

REGINA, Sask. (AP)—Another baby—the fifth—died Sunday in a hospital where boric acid was put into nursery-bottle formulas by mistake.

The solution was thought to be distilled water because it was so labeled on the jug that held it at the Grey Nuns Hospital here. Ten of the hospital's 45 babies got the wrong mixture. Two died Friday and two more Saturday. Five appear to be recovering.

Rita Fortier, sister superior at the hospital, said replacement blood transfusions were given to ailing infants when the doctors first began to realize something was wrong.

She said distilled water and boric acid jugs in the formula room are the same size, but the water jugs are clear instead of amber. Police and hospital authorities were investigating to learn how the acid got into a clear bottle.

Formosa Population

West Hopeful Portugal Eases Angola Stand

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A U. S. spokesman expressed hope Sunday the pressure of Western opinion would induce Portugal to prepare the Portuguese West African territory of Angola for self-government.

The U. S. Delegate Jonathan B. Bingham made that statement on the CBS-TV program "U. N. in Action," as the worsening situation in Angola loomed as an issue for the U. N. General Assembly's current, resumed session.

A member of the 46-nation Asian-African group said a request that the 99-nation assembly inscribe the subject on its agenda would be filed Monday or Tuesday over the signatures of perhaps 35 or more of the delegations in the group.

Portuguese Delegate Vasco Vieira Garin told a reporter, "We will oppose (such) inscription." But general expectation is the subject will go on the agenda, and the Asian-African informant said he would not be surprised if a resolution finally were adopted.

Liberia, which had put the matter before the Security Council, signaled the move to take it to the assembly when the council rejected last week a proposed investigation of Angolan independence riots last month fatal to at least 38 and possibly 100 persons.

The proposal from Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic failed despite a favorable vote from the United States because abstentions by six U. S. Allies held it to five votes, two short of the seven necessary for adoption.

In his televised interview, Bingham said the U. S. vote "was not taken hastily, and the Portuguese government was not taken by surprise," having been "advised on our thinking on the subject."

Train Strikes Car; 6 Die

CUCAMONGA, Calif. (AP)—A man and wife and four children driving to a mountain picnic were hit broadside by a fast-moving freight train at a railroad crossing Sunday. All six were killed.

Parents of two of the children, following in another car, watched as the train slammed into the sedan and scattered wreckage and mangled bodies 144 feet down the track.

The highway patrol identified the dead as: John Herron, 29, of Norwalk; his wife, Audrey, 30; their two children, Kathleen, 3, and Billy, 4, and two children of two other families, Edward Lennox, 3, and Cim Fuller, 5, a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lennox of Downey and Mr. and Mrs. George Fuller of Norwalk were in a car following Herron's. A short time before the accident they stopped, and Edward Lennox and little Cim Fuller transferred to the Herron's children.

Highway patrol officers said Herron apparently didn't see the Santa Fe train until it was too late. He hit his brakes and

Red Chief's Charges Hit By Cardinal

"Caesars Will Bow
To God," Primate
Warns In Sermon

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The two most powerful men in Poland—the head of the Communist party and the primate of the Roman Catholic Church—came into direct and open conflict Sunday for the first time since 1956.

"I tell you Caesars that you will bow to your God and you will serve only Him and no one else," declared Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski in jeering tones. "Satan is mighty, but man will not bow his head before him."

The cardinal, speaking in a Sunday morning sermon amid a steadily heightening church-state struggle, denied an accusation made by Communist chief Wladyslaw Gomulka Saturday that the church is following anti-Communist directives from the Vatican. The cardinal said the Vatican's instructions to him have always been: "Poland acts on its own."

Uneasy Truce Reached In 1956

Gomulka came to power in 1956 after the tough Stalinist regime crumbled. He negotiated an uneasy truce with the Roman Catholic Church. The Communist party's major concession to the church was to allow religious instruction by priests in state schools. Most Poles are Roman Catholics.

In January the Communist party adopted a school-reform program believed aimed at eliminating religious instruction from the classroom by 1963.

The atheist newspaper Argumenty then charged—and church sources confirmed—that the Vatican had given Cardinal Wyszynski special powers to impose tighter discipline on priests. This apparently was aimed at priests who have grown less militant toward Communist authorities and at pseudo-Catholic laymen's groups friendly with the regime.

Gomulka, in a speech Saturday opening the campaign for the April 16 national elections, accused the Vatican of trying to provoke "the persecution and martyrdom" of the church in Poland and carrying out its fight against communism at the cost of the hierarchy here. He denied the government is persecuting the church.

No Defense To "Rebel" Charge

The cardinal, speaking at a Lenten retreat minutes later, said he would not offer any defense "against the charge that the church is a rebel." It was not clear whether he had known of Gomulka's speech and intended his own as a rebuttal.

But his statements Sunday were clearly a reply to Gomulka.

The cardinal referred to several state-sponsored youth organizations whose programs include "atheism, rationalism, etc."

His voice echoing through the vaulted nave of the Renaissance Church of the Visitation, the cardinal said these groups show that the regime is persecuting the church.

Meningitis Kills 317

NIAMEY, Niger (AP)—An epidemic of cerebral-spinal meningitis has killed 317 persons since the first of the year in the republic of Niger, Harou Houka, health minister of the former French colony, said Sunday. The death figure was recorded March 11, he added, and probably now is much higher.

Episcopal Bishops Call For End To Death Penalty

Report Criticizes FBI Director

NEW YORK (AP)—Bishops of the Episcopal Church issued a report Sunday condemning capital punishment and criticizing FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover for supporting it.

The study document was described as the first of its kind ever issued by an American church.

It said the death penalty "brutalizes society," debases law enforcement, fails to deter crime, even stimulates crime in some cases, and is "contrary to the will of God."

The 30-page report raps Hoover for dismissing opponents of capital punishment as sheltered people unaware of the horrors committed by criminals.

"With the aura of authority which surrounds such a public figure, his unsupported assertion is devastating against a more enlightened penology, and in the eyes of politically minded legislators outweighs all the careful statistical studies that have been made of the question," the report said.

Disputing charges of "pacifism and... sentimentalism," frequently hurled against opponents of capital punishment, the report said that, actually, those favoring the practice base their position on "sentimentalism."

"The overwhelming preponderance of testimony that meets any criteria of scientific accuracy shows that capital punishment is neither a deterrent to crime nor a preventive," the report said.

"The proponents of capital punishment are guilty of a far more sentimental cast of mind than the most starry-eyed advocate of its abolition. This is because capital punishment fails in its objectives as a deterrent and brutalizes the state and citizenry which resort to it."

"This is sentimentalism, not starchy-eyed, but grisly and vengeful, not sickeningly sweet, but vindictive and brutal."

Citing theological arguments as well as statistical findings, the report says capital punishment leads to uneven justice by police, district attorneys and courts.

Salvage Of Crashed Bomber Continues

PATUXENT, Md. (AP)—Salvage crews from Patuxent Naval Air Station Sunday continued the recovery of an A3J Vigilante jet bomber which crashed into Chesapeake Bay Friday, killing the pilot.

A Patuxent spokesman acknowledged that Lt. Cmdr. William E. Grimes, 37, the pilot, had died when his plane plunged into five feet of water near the edge of the Bay.

Grimes, who lived with his wife and three children at nearby Lexington Park, Md., was participating in field carrier landing maneuvers preceding the crash.

Verwoerd Flies Home With Final Jibe At Critics

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd flew home to South Africa from the Commonwealth conference Sunday night, with a final taunt at critics of his country's racist policies.

"All I can say is our opponents who wanted us out of the Commonwealth have won their wish but lost their cause," the South African leader told a news conference.

He did not elaborate on that statement but asserted that South Africa will still become a republic May 31 and continue with its racial segregation system of apartheid.

"We will still continue with our policy of doing justice to both white and black by creating for each full opportunities for happiness and prosperity and self-government," Verwoerd said.

Verwoerd having led South Africa out of the Commonwealth after an association of 51 years, left the capital as fears were being expressed in many quarters concerning how long the British family of nations can exist in its present form.

Two thousand anti-apartheid marchers paraded in London Sunday and police arrested 29 as scuffles broke out at a protest rally in Trafalgar Square.

Verwoerd was seen off at London airport by Duncan Sandys, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations.

"The friendship and trade between South Africa and the United Kingdom, as well as our other friends, will continue to flourish and grow to the mutual benefit of all," Verwoerd declared, in a final show of cordiality.

But his foreign secretary, Eric Louw, followed up a Verwoerd jibe that Canada had shown "immaturity" in its hostile attitude to apartheid during the Commonwealth talks.

Louw said bluntly it was his impression that Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker had been motivated by political expediency.

"He has been losing ground in Canada and is pandering to the anti-South African campaign carried on in the Canadian Press, as well as in clerical and ultra-liberal circles," Louw asserted.

Louw added that "the African-Asian-Canadian bloc came to the conference determined to oust South Africa from the Commonwealth unless the government agreed to change its policies."

South Africa's Acting Premier Hurt In Crash

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—Paul Oliver Sauer, South Africa's 63-year-old acting prime minister, suffered three broken ribs and a knee injury in an automobile accident Saturday night at nearby Stellenbosch. He is expected to be laid up for two or three weeks.

Sauer is minister of lands and the senior cabinet minister so he was deputized to act for Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd during the Commonwealth Conference in London.

Railroads Ask "4 Freedoms"

"Magna Carta For Transportation" Issued By Industry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The railroad industry Sunday — for the third time in three years — started a major push for governmental action to help ailing carriers regain some degree of national well-being.

The new campaign pulls together a number of proposals previously advanced by the industry or recommended by the diverse study groups which have examined "the railroad problem."

But it is given significance by the "we mean business" atmosphere in which it is launched.

The opening gun was a manifesto published Sunday by the 21 directors of the Association of American Railroads entitled "Magna Carta for Transportation," and addressed to "Congress and the governing authorities."

The statement, "speaking for the industry," called in broad terms for "four freedoms—from discriminatory regulation, from discriminatory taxation, from subsidized competition," and the right to "provide a diversified transportation service."

Specifically, this means the railroads now intend to drive hard to have Congress abandon the present system of separate railroad, trucking, airline and water carrier operations and move into a new concept of "general transportation companies."

In Baltimore, president Howard E. Simpson of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad issued a separate statement in connection with the manifesto.

"Uncompensated government subsidies for transportation facilities hurt the public and, in the long run, all forms of transportation," Simpson said in referring to the proposed National User Charge Commission.

Simpson said President Kennedy recognized the need for charging the cost of facilities to those who benefit most when he recommended last month that heavier commercial vehicles pay a fairer share of the cost of the federal highway program.

"The idea that subsidies will lower total transportation costs is false," Simpson said. "What they actually do is distort all costs and investments by political log-rolling so that the inefficient is encouraged."

"The result is that we have too much total plant for the traffic in sight, but not enough of the most efficient facilities. This kind of short-sightedness not only puts a burden on the public, but makes us especially vulnerable in the event of a national emergency."

The commission, the B&O president said, would be required to estimate, by three-year periods, the approximate full cost of inland waterway improvements, federally-assisted highways, airports and airways, and the probable character and extent of use of such facilities.

The commission then would determine the kind and amount of charges to be made on those expected to use the facilities, Simpson said, so as to yield funds approximately equal to the estimated cost of the facilities to be used during the period and not otherwise reimbursed.

ing among various anti-Castro groups and their leaders in Florida and elsewhere is slowing their campaign to oust Castro's leftist regime.

"We are fighting, and some of us are dying here, while opposition leaders in exile hold conferences and dispute over the jobs they are going to hold in the new government," said one opposition leader here.

"Most of us are beginning to feel more and more if this job is done, it will have to be done from inside Cuba."

One of the causes for complaint by Castro's enemies here is that the exiles seem to be jockeying to determine which group can emerge on top in whatever junta or government is formed in exile.

"Some of them seem to forget that the big job is not to pick a new boss for Cuba, but to get rid of the one we now have," said one woman prominent in anti-Castro activities here.

She said "bickering in Miami" is one factor in the success of the Castro forces' campaign in the Escambray Mountains of central Cuba.

TOKYO (AP)—The 17th anniversary of the World War II Battle of Iwo Jima was observed Sunday with Buddhist rites for Japanese and American fighting men killed on the atoll.

U. S. Marine Col. Frederic R. Dowsett, 49, of Battle Creek, Mich., a survivor of the one-month campaign, attended the memorial ceremony at Gokokuji Temple in central Tokyo.

Dowsett and his wife sat shoeless and cross-legged on the temple's straw-matted floor, next to the widow and son of Lt. Gen. Tadamiichi Kuribayashi. The Japanese general was the highest-ranking officer to die on the island along with some 20,000 officers and men. The United States lost 4,500 men in the battle.

The Buddhist service for the "peaceful repose of the souls" of the war dead was sponsored by former Japanese navy Capt. Tsunezo Wachi, wartime commander on Iwo Jima. After the war Wachi shaved his head and entered the Buddhist priesthood in memory of his men.

Railroads Ask "4 Freedoms"

"Magna Carta For Transportation" Issued By Industry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The railroad industry Sunday — for the third time in three years — started a major push for governmental action to help ailing carriers regain some degree of national well-being.

The new campaign pulls together a number of proposals previously advanced by the industry or recommended by the diverse study groups which have examined "the railroad problem."

But it is given significance by the "we mean business" atmosphere in which it is launched.

The opening gun was a manifesto published Sunday by the 21 directors of the Association of American Railroads entitled "Magna Carta for Transportation," and addressed to "Congress and the governing authorities."

The statement, "speaking for the industry," called in broad terms for "four freedoms—from discriminatory regulation, from discriminatory taxation, from subsidized competition," and the right to "provide a diversified transportation service."

Specifically, this means the railroads now intend to drive hard to have Congress abandon the present system of separate railroad, trucking, airline and water carrier operations and move into a new concept of "general transportation companies."

In Baltimore, president Howard E. Simpson of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad issued a separate statement in connection with the manifesto.

"Uncompensated government subsidies for transportation facilities hurt the public and, in the long run, all forms of transportation," Simpson said in referring to the proposed National User Charge Commission.

Simpson said President Kennedy recognized the need for charging the cost of facilities to those who benefit most when he recommended last month that heavier commercial vehicles pay a fairer share of the cost of the federal highway program.

"The idea that subsidies will lower total transportation costs is false," Simpson said. "What they actually do is distort all costs and investments by political log-rolling so that the inefficient is encouraged."

"The result is that we have too much total plant for the traffic in sight, but not enough of the most efficient facilities. This kind of short-sightedness not only puts a burden on the public, but makes us especially vulnerable in the event of a national emergency."

The commission, the B&O president said, would be required to estimate, by three-year periods, the approximate full cost of inland waterway improvements, federally-assisted highways, airports and airways, and the probable character and extent of use of such facilities.

The commission then would determine the kind and amount of charges to be made on those expected to use the facilities, Simpson said, so as to yield funds approximately equal to the estimated cost of the facilities to be used during the period and not otherwise reimbursed.

ing among various anti-Castro groups and their leaders in Florida and elsewhere is slowing their campaign to oust Castro's leftist regime.

"We are fighting, and some of us are dying here, while opposition leaders in exile hold conferences and dispute over the jobs they are going to hold in the new government," said one opposition leader here.

"Most of us are beginning to feel more and more if this job is done, it will have to be done from inside Cuba."

Bandit-Slayer Reward Money Reaches $3,000

BALTIMORE (AP)—Reward money has been raised to $3,000 for the arrest and conviction of a Baltimore man who shot and killed a Baltimore liquor store owner Thursday night.

Police have widened their investigation in an effort to learn the identity of the bandit who shot 60-year-old Andrew Blondheim in his store and fled with about $800 in cash. $2,500 of the reward has been offered by Mrs. James H. Pollack, sister of the victim and the wife of a prominent city political leader. Another $500 was put up by the Metropolitan Baltimore Licensed Beverage Association.

According to an account of the slaying by a clerk in the store, the Negro gunman walked into the store while Blondheim was counting receipts, and without a word, shot Blondheim with a .38-caliber pistol. The bandit's overcoat and cap were found later by police a few blocks from the store.

China Drought Eased

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China, thirsting for water to ward off threats of another drought, reported Sunday that weekend rainfall in the northern provinces.

The barbecue originated in the South, and was popular in Virginia prior to 1700.

Riot Flares In Rhodesia; Five Injured

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Rioting broke out Sunday among a crowd of 30,000 attending a meeting of the National Democratic party, an African nationalist group. Police used tear gas to break up the open-air meeting, saying rioters had stoned them and thrown bottles at police vehicles.

First reports said three Negro constables and two members of the crowd had been injured. Newsmen and photographers covering the meeting had to flee to safety. One white policeman discounted the rioting as minor, but newsmen said the Africans had pelted and smashed down fences to escape the tear gas.

Earlier, Joshua Nkomo, president of the party, told his followers they should work to make "Africa a great continent because the European (white) countries are on the wane." He praised the late Patrice Lumumba of the Congo as a worthy leader.

Southern Rhodesia's last serious race riots occurred in October, when seven Africans died of gunshot wounds at Salisbury and Gwelo.

The barbecue originated in the South, and was popular in Virginia prior to 1700.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy Sunday heard a sermon exhorting parents to give their children spiritual values and to set an example for them to honor.

The President attended 11:15 a.m. Mass at Holy Trinity Church where Rev. Martin J. Casey, S. J., delivered a sermon based on the fourth commandment: "Honor thy father and thy mother."

The President went to church alone. He sat in an aisle seat toward the back of the balcony.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy was at their country estate at Middleburg, Va.

Fr. Casey told parents their offspring have an obligation to obey them. But he added, "parents are required to give their children something."

He said God demands of parents that they "supply material and spiritual values to their children."

He said too many parents put an exaggerated emphasis on giving their children material comforts and failed to discipline them for hard knocks in later life.

Hume Blasts Tawes For Saying Slot Question Local Issue

BALTIMORE (AP) — David Hume, former treasurer of the Maryland Democratic party, said Sunday Gov. Tawes has "turned away from many friends, his own church and the ideals of the Democratic party," in calling the slot machine question a local issue.

Hume, a Washington attorney and resident of Charles County, resigned several months ago as treasurer of the Democratic State Central Committee after differences with Tawes.

He recently accepted the chairmanship of a committee working for the abolition of slot machines in Maryland. Hume made his remarks today on a television interview program, "Man of the Week" (WJZ-TV).

Asked what connection Hocker has with slot machine interests, Hume replied:

"He once suggested to me if I wanted to be a delegate to the Democratic National Convention I should not continue to attack slot machines. The governor also suggested to me I was embarrassing his friends."

"My name was stricken (from the delegate list) by Mr. Hocker. He told me he would strike my name, and he did."

Hume acknowledged he did eventually attend the convention as an alternate delegate.

Four bills have been introduced in the General Assembly to outlaw gambling machines in the southern Maryland counties where they are legal — Anne Arundel, St. Marys, Calvert and Charles.

Tawes recently met with leaders of the anti-gambling campaign and told them he considered it a local issue, one to be decided by the individual counties. But he indicated he would sign any anti-slot machine bill enacted.

Hume was asked if his being a "controversial political figure," might not hurt the anti-gambling cause.

"I'm not a dissident," he said. "The real dissident, are these—a chief executive whose concept of his job does not include the view that the State House is the center of not only administrative leadership but moral leadership."

Hume said slot machine interests are "backed by one of the most powerful political organizations in this state." He said he felt it was his responsibility "to show what would happen if gambling interests are placed in a position of power where their campaign contributions are such that a politician who says 'No' would be helpless."

Hume said gambling devices, including pinball machines, exist in every county. He said 5,677 machines are licensed in the four southern Maryland counties where they are legal, but the federal government collects taxes from 9,299 devices throughout the state.

At one point, Hume described what he called "a lobbyist's heaven." He said the lobbyists would "have a key to the State House, use the governor's private phones, add names and strike names from appointment lists."

Pressed by David Culhane, reporter for The Baltimore Evening Sun, to name names, Hume said:

"This is the situation in Maryland. I am referring to Mr. Hocker."

Culhane said he knew Hocker as a friend and advisor to the governor. Hume said the difference between an advisor and a lobbyist is "a matter of semantics."

The other panelist, Lawrence Stern of The Washington Post, asked Hume if he will be a candidate for statewide office in the next election. He replied, "I don't know."

The program was moderated by Gwynn Owens.

Pressman Files Brief In River Pact Battle

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore attorney, Hyman A. Pressman, filed a brief with the Maryland Court of Appeals Saturday as the first step in the April 4 court battle on the Maryland-Virginia Potomac River Compact.

Pressman represents a group of Southern Maryland watermen who contend the compact is in violation of both state laws and the state constitution. Maryland voters approved the compact in a referendum last November.

Maryland Briefs

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A bill which would permit parochial school students to take advantage of public school bus transportation in Baltimore County was endorsed Saturday by the state senator from that county.

Sen. James A. Pine said he would vote for the bill if it is passed by the House. The delegates will vote on it next week. Pine pointed out that the county had been providing transportation for students to private schools since 1938.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Another addition to the terminal building at Friendship International Airport will be started Monday.

Charles P. Crane, chairman of the Airport Board, said the addition will provide 88 feet of ticket counter, with office and baggage space totaling about 15,000 sq ft. The space will be utilized by Northeast, Northwest and Piedmont airlines.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Benefit payments under the Maryland Unemployment Insurance Law totaled almost $7 million during February — a jump of more than 50 per cent compared with February 1960.

The figures, released Saturday by the State Department of Employment Security, showed the payments reached a new high for the second consecutive month. They were 3.1 per cent greater than the $6.5 million of January 1960.

State Traffic Toll For 1961 Reaches 68

By The Associated Press

Two Marylanders died in weekend accidents, bringing the state's 1961 traffic toll to 68. There had been 110 killed in accidents the same time a year ago.

One of the weekend victims, 59-year-old Nathan Johnson of Baltimore, was a pedestrian. He was dead on arrival at University Hospital after being struck by a car Saturday.

The other victim, Donald E. Merrick, 26, of Catonsville, was killed early Saturday when his car crashed into the rear of another vehicle on U. S. 40 near West Friendship, Howard County.

Trial Magistrate Indicted By Grand Jury

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP)—A Lancaster's attorneys, said the St. Marys County grand jury Saturday indicted Trial Magistrate Harry S. Lancaster on what his attorney said was a charge of wrongfully suspending the sentence of a defendant.

Lancaster immediately labeled the action political and charged State's Atty. Joseph A. Mattingly with using his office "to prosecute his political opponent."

Mattingly could not be reached immediately for comment. The text of the indictment was not made public. Grand jury proceedings are held behind closed doors.

William O. E. Sterling, one of Lancaster's attorneys, said the Circuit Court Judge Philip H. St. Marys County grand jury Saturday indicted Trial Magistrate Harry S. Lancaster on what his attorney said was a charge of wrongfully suspending the sentence of a defendant.

Devine's sentence was suspended last Sept. 16 after he had appealed his case to a higher court. The grand jury issued a report on the incident last September. Lancaster said he has the right to suspend any sentence imposed in his court under Article 52, Section 19 of the Maryland Code.

Lancaster said at that time he wanted to appear before the grand jury himself. The grand jury granted his request on Thursday and heard the case for three days before reaching its decision Saturday night.

The Emperor Charlemagne of the Franks was crowned on the site of what is now the Church of St. Peter in Rome, on Christmas day, 800.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—The solid click singer Joanne Sommers made on Bobby Darin's TV "spec" isn't going wadin'. The pretty little doll heads for Columbia Studio for the femme lead opposite Mickey Rooney and funnyman Buddy Hackett in "Everything's Ducky."

These movie jobs are important to upcoming young singers—in other words, they're money in the bank for future recording and nightclub dates. Red Doff, Mickey's partner, tells me Joanne will sing the title role, otherwise she'll be occupied with just riotous comedy.

Director of "Everything's Ducky" is Don Taylor, who may not be feeling so funny. His best girl, Hazel Scott, is off to London to try to hurry up a long pending divorce which may take months to settle.

"The George Raft Story" scripted by Crane Wilbur is all ready for casting, and producer Ben Schwab has some interesting plans. He wants Edward G. Robinson and Jimmy Durante to play themselves in cameo roles, and Noah Beery, Jr., nephew of the late Wallace Beery, to portray "Uncle Wally."

Schwab is talking to Rod Steiger, unforgettable in his character of Capone in "Al Capone," about doing a repeat in the Raft movie. "Al Capone" was a real money maker for Allied Artists and sent this company off on a trail of financially successful underworld pictures.

Can You Be A Quick-Change Artist?

You're late, you're late . . . for ranged, why bureau drawers and an extremely important date! Or, dressing tables should be governed perhaps your alarm clock didn't with the same orderliness as a ring long and loud enough to file cabinet. This is why a good wake you up to the fact that light, a big mirror and a needle trains, unlike people, never wait.

Blessed are the punctual . . . as rank in fashion as mink and tancy perfume . . . where guesswork and the inevitable safety pin earn nothing but reproach.

You'll be able to glean several second-savers from my beauty calendar, "Your 30 Days to Charm." It explains, for example, a quick repair for a broken nail, a snappy system for freshening the hair and scalp on sticky days, a basic formula in selecting accessories on-the-spot. There are others, too, that should fit right in with your Emergency Plan.

Even creatures of good habits, like you, must learn to be flexible enough to vary them when the occasion demands . . . lest the date be broken, the train missed, the battle lost for want of a nail.

So, send for that calendar, enclosing just 10c and a stamped self-addressed envelope with your request to me, JRP, c/o this newspaper. It should be delivered within two weeks . . . but, long before it comes, I fully expect you to have performed at more than one DRESS REHEARSAL — for a quick change!

The first attempt to build a canal in Panama was by a French canal builder, Ferdinand de Lesseps, between 1879 and 1889. It failed.

Martin Co. Wins Rocket Contract

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Martin Co. won a $163,040 contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Agency Friday for a design study of a first-stage rocket booster having between two and three million pounds thrust.

The study, which will take seven months, is one of several aimed at establishing designs for a space vehicle which will provide global transportation.

The upper stages of the vehicle may utilize nuclear energy, a spokesman for the agency said.

Lias Trial Set Apr. 17

WASHINGTON (AP)—The trial of William J. (Big Bill) Lias, former Wheeling, W. Va., race track owner who is fighting deportation to Greece, has been set for April 17.

The U. S. District Court case will in effect be a new trial for Lias, who was ordered deported in 1955 after a U. S. Immigration Service hearing. That order was subsequently upheld by the Immigration Board of Appeals.

In 1958, Lias lost his fight in the U. S. District Court here but the decision against him was later vacated.

The government contends Lias was born in Ghythion, Greece, in 1899 or 1900, that he arrived in the United States aboard the S.S. Patris, and was admitted as an alien.

Lias contends he was born in Wheeling, W. Va., in 1900.

Among the issues are where Lias was born and, if the court finds he never acquired American citizenship, should be deported.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American nun who traded her religious habit for secular clothes probably would blush if she heard what an Irish priest said about her new job.

The cleric, Msgr. Patrick Carroll-Abbing, is head of Boys' Town of Italy.

The nun, Mother Dominic Ramacciotti, of Hagerstown, Md., five years ago gave up her position as dean of women at Notre Dame College in Baltimore to head up Girls' Town of Italy.

"She is doing a brilliant and extraordinary thing," the monsignor, her boss, said.

Under the direction of Mother Dominic, 50 underprivileged teenage girls in Rome now are getting the same quality of education that the nun once helped to give American girls from wealthy families in private schools.

Girls' Town is located in a large villa on the outskirts of Rome.

But Mother Dominic isn't the only American who has helped to establish a new way of life for girls who once fed on gloom.

Msgr. Carroll-Abbing said the villa was donated by Philip Liebmann and Linda Darnell. The funds contributed by Americans to Boys' Town of Italy also helps Girls' Town.

The priest said Mother Dominic received special permission to wear secular clothes — usually tweeds — because she wanted to be as natural and motherly as possible to the girls who never have known what it is to have a mother.

He also said that "the nun in tweeds" sought the special permissions because she felt the need to help underprivileged girls — to the same extent that she had helped privileged girls most of her life.

The permissions were extraordinary," Msgr. Carroll-Abbing said, "but it all has been worth the effort. This is one example of an American abroad spending her best capabilities for the promotion of good will."

The girls are taught history and French and English. They study child psychology, dietetics, art and music. The underlying ambition is to help form healthy personalities and to give the girls the confidence that comes from self-government.

Tunisia And The Maghreb Dream

The fifth anniversary of Tunisian independence today finds that nation reaching its ascendancy in North African diplomacy. Habib Bourguiba, its Western-oriented President, is acting as the main intermediary between French President Charles de Gaulle and Algerian rebel leaders.

It is no little credit to Bourguiba that he has had the confidence of both sides to the Algerian dispute. To the French he represents an Arab leader who by and large has protected vulnerable French interests in Tunisia in the years following independence. The Algerian rebels remember that two days after independence had been won Bourguiba had declared that the Tunisian people "cannot be truly happy . . . until their sister nation Algeria regains her sovereignty."

While much of the Arab world has been drifted away from the Western sphere, Tunisia has remained faithful. The London Economist notes: "President Bourguiba has always stood as President Nasser's chief Arab opponent, and he has lately been exerting himself to mobilize the moderate nations of Africa as a counter to the more militant ones." He also has looked to the West, principally the United States, for the economic aid and private investment Tunisia needs to save his already poor country from becoming poorer.

Bourguiba's long-range goal is that of a "united Maghreb" — a political and economic federation or union of Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco. In a communique issued in Rabat March 2, Bourguiba, King Hassan II of Morocco, and Ferhat Abbas, premier of the Algerian nationalists' provisional government based in Tunis, "re-affirmed their determination to build the Great Maghreb" when Algeria becomes free. The Mediterranean correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor cables from Beirut, Lebanon: "From the western point of view, a united or federated Maghreb, cooperating with France and the United States for economic development, is a goal supremely important and earnestly to be sought." Bourguiba is in a position to play a leading role in such a union; his nation's economy is making heartening progress and his political leadership at home is virtually unchallenged.

Fights

It was a very wet Monday night and I was looking for a fight. These days, it is not so easy to find a fight as most everybody is either lackadaisical or polite. I could have gone to Miami to see the Patterson-Johansson fight but I had decided against that and it was now too late.

So I thought that maybe I could see the fight between Ed Sullivan and Jack Paar. Well, they called that off. According to Ed Sullivan, Jack Paar wanted to change the rules in the middle of the fight; according to Jack Paar, Ed Sullivan is a liar and sue me.

That sounded like comedy. It sounded like Anna Held bathing in milk to attract attention. But then, these fellows do not need to attract attention. Everybody knows them. Millions listen to them. Jack Paar is on every night; Ed Sullivan goes on every Sunday night. They do not need the publicity of a fight.

Still and all, if two fellows, in the month of March, just before St. Patrick's Day, want to fight each other who will say them nay. But the way to fight is with fists or swords or guns, not with words.

This particular battle establishes the significance of television. Here are two rather simple and obscure personalities, probably pleasant enough, if one knows them well, who interest millions of people of all ages. Their fans take a direct, personal concern in their affairs. Their fans watch their personal affairs closely; their relations with their wives and children.

So they want to fight. What is the issue? It would seem that Sullivan who runs a vaudeville show on television pays his stars up to $7,500 a performance. These same stars, for some reason, are willing to work for Paar for his standard price of $320 a performance. Sullivan naturally feels that he is being robbed and that anyone who works for Paar for $320 will only get $320 from Sullivan. Paar's view is that anyone who does not wish to work for him does not have to. So there!

But this is not much of a fight. After all, actors and such work where their managers tell them to. The reason, usually, that they go on these omnibus shows is that they are out of work — at liberty — it is called.

So the actor's manager gets him on one of these television vaudeville shows where he performs between commercials and sometimes regains his reputation. New ones would really have a tough time if these vaudeville shows did not give them a "break." Many of them would have to work for a living for a long time before they got a chance to show the world how wonderful they are.

Back when I was a boy, there was a place on the Bowery called Miner's and many a great star started there, singing a song, jiggling through some steps, reciting something memorized. On 14th Street, in New York, next to Tammany Hall and around the corner from the distinguished Academy of Music, was Tony Pastor's — a vaudeville place where many youngsters started great careers. Vaudeville was the training school of the theatre, just as Burlesque was a bridge between the amateur and professional.

Nothing like that exists today. Instead, television has these few vaudeville shows. The most distinguished of these performances is that of Ed Sullivan who pays fabulous prices to performers and who has managed to keep his show going for, I believe, 13 years which is a long time for anything on television. Jack Paar's show is different. Whereas Sullivan is a mere master of ceremonies, Paar is the chief performer on his show. In fact, he is the big cheese. His performers give him backboard support. Sometimes, they are humorous; sometimes they are unbelievably mediocre. But it must be admitted that several of those who appeared on Paar's show, became stars in their own right.

Alas, there was no fight!

Some Strange Goings-On At United Nations

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There are some strange goings-on at the United Nations these days so far as the United States is concerned. "Quiet diplomacy" appears to be operating with a cover of secret maneuvering. The American people are in the dark about it all.

Adlai Stevenson, American representative at the U.N., is the big question mark. Why is he being asked on Capitol Hill, did he favor voting with the Soviet Union and against Great Britain and France on the Security Council to meddle in the internal affairs of Portugal in her African territory of Angola?

Why also has Mr. Stevenson been trading privately with Foreign Minister Gromyko of the Soviets about dropping the resolution concerning Hungary in exchange for the cutting-down of the program of debate on other issues which America presumably wants to avoid?

Since when is public discussion an evil thing in international affairs, especially when human rights are involved?

If there are sound reasons from a diplomatic viewpoint to engage in such a barter deal, these have not been revealed, and that's why members of Congress are beginning to express their concern over what's happening.

Portugal is an ally of the West. It is a member of NATO. It owns the Azores and permits American military forces to use these islands for air bases and naval anchorages in the mid-Atlantic. Why did the United States take the risk of antagonizing Portugal?

Another question that arises is why an international question, such as trouble in Angola, was considered by Adlai Stevenson to be one that the United States should agree to have investigated by the United Nations. It might develop that some of the U. N.

members would like to investigate how America handles its "segregation" problems in the South.

In the last few days, an international conference has been going on in London in which several former British Colonies, now independent, openly criticized South Africa and virtually forced her out of the so-called commonwealth group because of the way racial problems are being handled in that country. Even though soon to become an independent republic, South Africa's internal affairs were considered a subject for formal denunciation by several nations in the British Commonwealth Conference. This led to the withdrawal by South Africa of her participation in the commonwealth group hereafter.

A tendency to disregard the difference between internal and external questions has long been noted among groups or factions inside a country seeking outside sympathy. Thus, for many decades even the political parties in this country, in their national platforms, openly expressed sympathy for the aspirations of the Irish people for freedom and independence. This offended the London government, but at no time did the United States government ever take any official action or express publicly any sentiment of that kind.

Indeed, the Democratic platform in the early days of the century proclaimed sympathy with the SKI NOSE:—Rep. Don Magnuson (D—Wash.) is getting a little tired of being told he looks like Bob Hope. In fact, he sometimes becomes downright insulting about it.

Recently, he ran into Hope, a fellow ski-nose victim. Magnuson told the comedian, rather disgustedly, "Some people tell me I look like you."

Replied the irrepressible Hope: "There's always plastic surgery."

ADJOURNMENT — Although Congress seems hardly embarked on its work, some of its leaders already are talking hopefully—and perhaps a bit wistfully—about adjournment. The target: July 31. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, made this prediction the other day, and coupled it with the assertion that the Hill's work would be completed by that date.

Actually, the date has been an adjournment target each year, but has rarely been achieved. With the load of work facing Congress, including some 16 priority matters submitted by President Kennedy, it seems more unlikely than ever this year.

But stranger things have happened. Everyone knows that if the leadership really wanted to make Congress settle down to work, all necessary legislation could be considered, disposed of, and adjournment achieved by June, not July.

Doctors Seek Test To Predict Heart Attacks

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Heredity, high blood pressure, elevated blood cholesterol, excessive worry and tension, and obesity make a person more susceptible to heart disease. A combination of all or any three of these conditions is good reason for undergoing treatment. All except heredity can be corrected.

Many heart specialists have searched in vain for a single test to predict an impending heart attack. A consistently high blood cholesterol comes closest in that it is found in a high percentage of victims of angina pectoris and coronary thrombosis. I say consistently because the blood cholesterol test is difficult to do, variations are common, and a single test is unreliable.

But a person may have an elevated blood cholesterol for two decades before anything happens. In this respect it is not a good indicator unless combined with the factors previously mentioned.

Surviving a heart attack serves as an excellent warning that more trouble can be anticipated unless the individual mends his ways. More than 80 per cent of those with coronary occlusion survive. The first attack cannot be considered a test but it indicates without a doubt that the coronary arteries are abnormal.

Do we really want a good test that will predict a heart attack within a few weeks? This is a moot question and depends upon our attitude toward life.

Some physicians have all they can do to convince a man he should go to the hospital while he is having a heart attack, let alone trying to get him there a week ahead of time. Others might become so upset by the news of the impending attack they go to pieces. Such a test would be welcome, however, if the victim dropped everything and concentrated on avoiding or meeting the bout head-on.

Survival Of Venezuelan Democracy Depends On Oil Companies, Banks

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Beneath the airplane as you fly over Lake Maracaibo is a forest of oil rigs. They protrude from the water in neat, orderly rows like trees in a Florida citrus grove. They are carefully spaced, but not too carefully prospected, because all you have to do is put down a drill in this fabulous lake and you strike oil.

In between the oil rigs, little boats chug with tools, checking the pumps as they suck to the surface nearly 3,000,000 barrels daily of the black gold which a cretaceous generation placed beneath the earth's crust thousands of years ago for the present generation to get rich from and haggle over.

This forest of oil wells is why the stakes are so high in Venezuela, why the battle over dictatorship and Communism is so important, and why Venezuela is the key country which may set a future pattern for Latin America.

In Venezuela there are three great temptations for any government which has a tough time balancing its budget and the temptations are similar in other Latin-American countries. It can seize the billion-dollar forest of oil wells with their storage tanks and ornate offices. Or it can seize the great iron-ore operations of U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel on the Orinoco River. Or it can seize the vast network of schools, buildings, and investments of the Catholic church.

This is what Mexico did during its revolution, though it paid for the oil properties later. It's what Castro is doing now in Cuba without payment. And it could happen in other Latin countries, most of which have North Americans as their biggest investors and the Catholic church as their biggest property owner.

"The Big Bad Wolf"

In Venezuela, the man who has most to say about the future of the forest of oil rigs dotting the waters of Lake Maracaibo is the Minister of Mines, Dr. Juan Perez Alfonso, sometimes referred to as "the big bad wolf" of Venezuela. He is the member of the Betancourt Government who has refused to grant more concessions to the oil companies, set up a rival government petroleum company, and organized the oil-producing countries in the Near East into a front with Venezuela in order to bargain jointly with the oil companies. He is also the man whom some businessmen, both foreign and Venezuelan, say must resign before they loosen the credit strings for the Betancourt government.

Minister Perez Alfonso, however, has not touched the property of foreign investors. There has been no move toward expropriation. Scrupulously honest, definitely pro-American, genuinely democratic, Perez Alfonso is perhaps the key figure in the Betancourt Government which is trying to steer a course between dictatorship of the right and Castroism to the left.

After talking first with Perez Alfonso, then with some of the oil representatives, I came back to see the Minister of Mines again.

"I've found the people of Venezuela divided into two camps," I told him. "Those who are critical of Perez Alfonso and say there'll be no credit for Venezuela until he goes, and the other camp who say Perez Alfonso is doing one of the most honest and courageous jobs in the country and must stay. Which side is going to win out — you or the oil companies?"

"Fair Profits"

"The big bad wolf," who actually is a very mild-mannered, modest little man, smiled.

"I think the oil companies are gradually coming around to realizing that we are fair," he replied. "Also that we are partners."

He pulled out some figures on oil-company dividends.

"You will note here," he said, "that before the Perez Jimenez dictatorship in 1950, oil-company dividends ran around 7.5 per cent. Then suddenly Dictator Perez Jimenez came into power and in 1951 they jumped up to 18.7 per cent. In 1955 they soared to 32.1 per cent and continued around 25 per cent profit until Perez Jimenez was kicked out. That profit is certainly more than is reasonable in any country."

"In 1959, after a democratic administration took over, the profits dropped to 10.1 per cent. We consider a dividend of ten per cent to be fair. Furthermore, if you will look at the profits of 100 key corporations in the United States, as published by the National City Bank, you will note that their dividends averaged only 2.3 per cent in 1949, and 4.7 per cent in 1959. As against 4.7 per cent earned by American Corporations in the United States, we have permitted dividends of ten per cent to American corporations in Venezuela."

"What about the oil companies' argument that they have to plan in advance and that you won't let them explore future oil areas?" I asked.

"They want to plan, not for 20 years, but for 20 years beyond that," replied the Minister of Mines. "They already have enough oil lands to keep them busy for years, yet they are asking us for concessions far beyond a reasonable period of time."

"On the other hand, we have not done as Mossadegh did in Iran or what Castro has done in Cuba. And we don't intend to. We want them to make a reasonable return on their investment and we consider them important to our country."

The big bad wolf of Venezuela seemed very mild and very reasonable as he talked. And he gave not the slightest indication of resigning.

Nevertheless, the opposition to him on the part of most of the oil companies and the bankers in both Caracas and Wall Street remains just as firm, just as vigorous as ever. Upon their attitude and upon their loosening of the deep financial freeze on Venezuela will depend whether or not democracy survives, or whether Venezuela swings to the Fascist right or the Castro left.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The Indians won a few. It has become fashionable to picture the redskin as a savage with a word of honor, always ready to smoke the pipe of peace with his white brethren, and always getting the stem knocked down his throat. This isn't quite so.

The white settlers betrayed the Indians, and so did the Great White Father in Washington. The Indians were pretty good at the same game. They tore treaties when it pleased them, changed sides in the middle of wars, fought each other in tribal wars, sometimes lived in lice and pestilence, and, as sport, ambushed the white man.

At Little Big Horn, they not only massacred the 7th Cavalry, the renegade Indians also scalped the dead and excised organs to the last man. The only noble thing about it occurred after the battle. They admired Gen. Custer, so they propped the body of Golden Hair up, among his own dead, on his knees.

In the movies, Indians say "Ugh" and "How," but most of the tribes spoke articulate dialects and, around the council mat, they could talk the feathers off each other. Some Indians became so chicken in the inter-tribal wars that they went South to join the Seminoles in Florida. They were in no hurry to get to the Happy Hunting Ground.

The Seminoles are the only group left who have not concluded a treaty of peace with Washington. Technically, they are still at war with the United States.

Lo, the poor Indian was always a shrewd fellow. When William Henry Harrison was governor of Indiana Territory in 1811, he led 1,000 soldiers off to mop up Chief Tecumseh and the Chief's way-out brother, The Prophet. When they approached the Indian village, on the banks of the Wabash, the forlorn little braves were caught with their teepees down and they fled shrieking.

Harrison and his men could have caught them on the wing. But no, the stupid savages sent a chief out to pow-wow. There was a lot of pow in this particular wow. The chief begged Harrison not to start a massacre. Put your men in camp for the night, he begged, and we will send a peace mission in the morning.

So Harrison, who could not be hanged for intelligence, said okay, bud. Where is a good place to camp?

The Indians thought this over and named a tract of high land about three-quarters of a mile northwest of the village. The soldiers camped, set up their tents, and slept.

Oh, you know? Well, Harrison didn't. At 4 a.m. the Miami Indians attacked at Tippecanoe and a lot of sleepy Americans bit the dust. Harrison never saw that many Indians in a barrel full of nickels. They had guns too. None of this quaint bow and arrow stuff. They popped soldiers off until they tired of it and fled.

We celebrated this as a victory and made a hero of Harrison. In August 1812, American soldiers and their wives and children left Fort Dearborn with 27 friendly Miami Indians and were ambushed a mile and a half from the fort. This time the fun-loving redskins tomahawked women and children, stripped the bodies, and decapitated them on a river bank.

Twenty-six persons lived. There was always a uneasy question about how friendly a friendly Indian might be. Some of Custer's scouts were known to disappear a few hours before battle. Those Indians sure knew Indians, and they wanted no trouble. At the first zing of an arrow, it was amazing how much ground a brave could cover in little massacres.

In the movies, the U.S. Cavalryman is forever making catties eyes at the Indian princess. This is palatable in the movies because Ann Blythe or Debbie Reynolds is playing the princess and every idiot at the movie knows it. But, in real life, the average Apache princess was a little more than a little more. If a cavalryman squeezed one of those bags, oil would squirt out of her ears.

This is not to say that some were not pretty. A few who were under 180 pounds had more curves than a buffalo trail after a stampede. These you could count on the fingers of one thumb.

I'm not anti-Indian by a long shot. A very long shot. I have a scalp full of white hair which I would like to keep. On the other hand, I'm a realist in historical matters. The white man was treacherous. So was the Indian. I like them best on old pennies.

Unbeaten Bucks To Face St. Joe In NCAA Semi-Final

Utah, Cincy To Meet At Kansas City

Games Set Friday, NIT Action Resumes Tuesday At Garden

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Defending champion Ohio State St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, Cincinnati's up-and-coming Bearcats and Utah are the semifinalists in the National Collegiate Basketball Championship after four regional tournaments, which started out with very few surprises.

They'll meet in that order—Ohio State vs. St. Joe and Cincinnati vs. Utah—in the semifinals at Kansas City Friday night. And it wouldn't be at all surprising to see an all-Ohio final Saturday.

Bucks Trip Kentucky

Ohio State's Buckeyes, who stormed through the 1960-61 season undefeated after winning the NCAA title last spring, had little trouble handling Kentucky 87-74 as All-America Jerry Lucas rebounded from the weakest performance of his career against Louisville Friday and turned in one of his best.

Cincinnati, ranked No. 2 in the nation in the Associated Press poll, had some trouble against Kansas State's Big Eight champions, the No. 4 team. That was to be expected, but the Bearcats rallied to win 69-64 and gain a record-equating third straight regional title.

St. Joseph's, hardly considered as an eastern champion before the tournament began, caught early Wake Forest after the Deacons had perpetrated two upsets and rambled to 96-86 victory. Utah's Mountain States conference champions, with mountaineer Billy McGill, whipped Arizona State University 88-80.

Regional Consolations

The four regional consolation games ended this way:

East: St. Bonaventure 85, Princeton 67—on a second half rally by the Bonnies.

Midwest: Louisville 83, Morehead (Ky.) 61—easily, with 28 points by John Turner.

Midwest: Texas Tech 69, Houston 67—after blowing an 11-point lead.

West: Loyola of Los Angeles 69, Southern California 67—on 32 points by Ed Berto.

The other major national tournament, the National Invitation in New York's Madison Square Garden, produced some rather unexpected results as two seeded teams were beaten rather decisively in the quarter-finals.

Seeded Teams Lose

Holy Cross, a fired-up team playing aggressive and often brilliant basketball, out fought Memphis State for a 81-69 decision and St. Louis, slightly smoother on defense, downed the Aggies of Colorado State U. 59-53. The other two seeded teams, Niagara and Dayton made their first tournament appearance.

Goalby Takes St. Petersburg Open Tourney

Makes 8 Straight Birdies, Posts 261

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—With a phenomenal string of eight straight birdies, Bob Goalby shot a six-under par 65 in the final round Sunday to win the 72-hole St. Petersburg Open Golf Tournament by three strokes.

The winning total of 261 was the lowest for a PGA cosponsored tournament since 1955, when Mike Souchak won the Texas Open with 257.

Sets PGA Record

Goalby's eight consecutive birdies set a PGA tour record. Three players have registered seven birdies in a row—Tommy Bolt at San Diego in 1953, Warren Smith at San Antonio in 1954 and Don Bishophoff at Pensacola last year.

Goalby started the final round with 196, a one stroke lead over Ted Kroll, who carded a 67 Sunday for a 264 total, good for second place.

Gary Player wound up in third place by registering a 68 for a 266 total.

The victory in the $20,000 event was worth $2,800 to the husky Goalby, who had rounds of 67, 62, 67 and 65. The 62 was a record for the course.

Boston Celtics Defeat Syracuse Nats, 128-115

Cop Opening Game Of Final Series In Eastern Division

BOSTON (UPI)—Frank Ramsey and Bob Cousy paced the Boston Celtics to a 128-115 win over the Syracuse Nationals Sunday in the opening game of the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division playoff final.

The Celtics led practically all the way in the nationally-televized game played before 7,728 spectators at the Garden.

Ramsey led the winners with 25 points while Cousy, who hit on his first five floor attempts, wound up with 24. Dolph Schayes of Syracuse was high man for both teams with 26 points.

Eliminated Warriors

The Nats were playing here only 15 hours after wrapping up their Eastern Division semifinal series victory by beating the Philadelphia Warriors Saturday night at Syracuse for the third straight time.

Right behind Ramsey and Cousy among the Boston standouts were Bill Russell, Tommy Heinsohn and Sam Jones. Russell had 22 points plus 34 rebounds. Heinsohn had 20 points, 16 of them in the second half, and Jones accounted for 13 of his 18 points in the last two quarters.

Dick Barnett and Hal Greer each had 20 points for the Nats, the two staging a brief Syracuse rally in the last minutes before Boston finished up with a flourish.

Coach, Owner Ejected

The Nats lost, in addition to the first game in the best of seven series, their coach and owner. Coach Alex Hannum was thrown out of the game by referee Jim Duffy midway through the fourth period and owner Dan Bionane, on the NBA board of governors, followed him a few seconds later.

In addition, two players, Al Bianchi and Swede Halbrook, fouled out of the game for the Syracuse club about midway through the final quarter.

Flash Elorde Whips Lopes, Retains Title

35,000 See Sunday Fight In Manila

MANILA (AP)—Gabriel (Flash) Elorde of the Philippines successfully defended his world junior lightweight championship Sunday night by chopping out a clear-cut decision over durable Joey Lopes of Sacramento, Calif., in a 15-round bout before 35,000 fans.

Elorde jumped out to a good margin in the right, rocking Lopes in the second round, coasted in the middle and came back strongly for a unanimous decision.

Both boxers weighed 130 pounds, the limit for the recently revived division. Lopes is rated the No. 3 challenger by the U.S. National Boxing Association.

It was Elorde's second successful defense of the title he won from Harold Gomes of Providence, R.I., on a knockout here last year.

Referee Felipe Hernandez scored the bout 76-67 for Elorde. Judge Alfredo Quizon had it 74-68, and Gregorio Trinidad 71-66. The AP scored the fight for Elorde 72-66.

There were no knockdowns in the bout, which however did not lack for action. Lopes bled freely from a cut inside his mouth in the ninth and tenth rounds.

Tigers Trim Phils

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers overcame a five-run deficit, helped by two home runs, to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 10-8, Sunday.

Pinch-hitter Bubba Morton and first baseman Larry Osborne slammed three-run homers for the Tigers, who collected 18 hits off five Phils' pitchers. Only Dick Farrell, who pitched the first three innings for the Phils, and Joe Grzenda, who hurled the last three frames for the Tigers, escaped being scored upon.

Two errors helped the Tigers break an 8-8 tie in the seventh. Chico Fernandez' first hit of the spring snapped the tie.

Tony Curry, Phils' left fielder, had been swinging a hot bat, hanged out three doubles in three trips to the plate to knock in five of the Phils' runs.

Tribe Whips Frisco

TUCSON (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians spotted San Francisco to a five-run lead in the first three innings here Sunday then beat them 15-9.

The Tribe's big inning was the fourth when they scored eight runs. Catcher Johnny Romano's home run with two on and Willie Kirkland's base-clearing double with bases full were the big blows.

Patteson Keeps His Hope For Interstate Road

Ex-Governor Says "Not Dead Issue"

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — Former Gov. Okey L. Patteson has not given up hope of having a proposed North-South highway in West Virginia included in the Interstate System.

Patteson said here Sunday that rejection of the proposal last week by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads does not necessarily mean it is a "dead issue."

Gov. W. W. Barron was told last Friday in Washington by Federal highway administrator Rex M. Whitton that the interstate mileage "is practically taken up."

Barron had hoped to have the proposed highway between Morgantown and Beckley included in the federal program which provides 90 per cent of the money and the state 10 per cent.

The Legislature earlier this month provided $8.5 million for probable use in starting construction of the highway. However, it has been estimated that the route generally following U. S. 19 would cost about $250 million for its 163 miles of roadway.

Patteson, who heads the Big 8 Development Association, said his group was "disappointed" by the decision but that "we can't let that discourage us."

The association is made up of members from Raleigh, Fayette, Nicholas, Greenbrier, Monroe, Mercer, Summers and Wyoming Counties. Its chief project is completion of the North-South highway.

"Losing something we didn't have to start with is not as bad as it might look," Patteson said. "Furthermore, there is a chance a bill introduced by Rep. John Slack, D-W. Va., calling for an additional 1,000 miles of interstate roads might be passed."

Patteson, president of a local bank, said that "if that fails, we still are eligible for the 50-50 federal road funds" for such a project.

"We have not lost hope. We will renew our efforts and work harder than ever before to obtain this highway which is vital to West Virginia," he declared.

Meanwhile, the Morgantown Dominion-News Monday predicted the first section of the North-South Expressway would be let for contract by the end of the year.

The paper said the answer given by the Bureau of Public Roads at Friday's meeting was entirely expected. However, the paper said the main reason for the meeting was to launch plans for the beginning of construction of the highway, if not under the 90-10 interstate matching program, under the regular 50-50 federal matching fund basis.

The Dominion News also said it suggested that the state be refunded 40 cents on every dollar that it spends on a highway if the highway is subsequently included by the federal government in its interstate system.

Yankees To Train At Ft. Lauderdale, Plan Move In 1963

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) —The New York Yankees definitely will switch from St. Petersburg to Fort Lauderdale as a spring training base in 1963 and may make the move in 1962, owner Dan Topping announced Sunday.

"Fort Lauderdale will be ready for us next year," Topping said. "Actually, we have not signed the contracts but we will train there in 1963."

Topping said the club had nothing against St. Petersburg, where it has trained almost exclusively since 1925.

"They have treated us fine. We have no complaints," Topping said. "It's just that we would prefer to be the only team in town in a city with modern facilities."

Asked what, if any, segregation problems the Yankees might encounter in Fort Lauderdale, Topping said he preferred not to make a statement on that at this time.

However, sources close to the club indicate the Yankees have made arrangements to rent a motel in Fort Lauderdale where they will house the entire team "under one roof."

Reiman Wins Rich Motorcycle Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) —Roger Reiman of Kewanee, Ill., won motorcycle racing's biggest jackpot Sunday when he outdistanced a class field in the 200-mile AMA national championship race at Daytona International Speedway.

The 22-year-old Reiman rode his Harley Davidson in front of the 57-man field from the second lap to the finish and collected $1,260 lap money in addition to the $2,500 first prize.

Birds Farm House, Nicholson, Barker

MIAMI (AP) —The Baltimore Orioles late Sunday reduced their spring training squad to 45 players by assigning veteran catcher Frank House and two rookies to Rochester of the International League.

Utah, Cincy

semifinal bracket will be completed Tuesday when Temple plays Dayton and Providence meets Niagara. Semifinals are scheduled for Thursday night and the final Saturday afternoon.

Wittenberg (Ohio) outpointed Southeast Missouri 42-38 for the NCAA College Division title in a game that must have set a record for low scoring in tournament play.

Grumbling (La.) routed Georgetown (Ky.) 95-75 in the final of the NCAA championship, with four Grambling players hitting 20 points or more. And Pueblo (Colo.) beat Taylor (Tex.) 79-66 for the Junior College title.

The story of Ohio State's victory in the Midwest NCAA Regional was the Jerry Lucas story. The 6-foot-8 Buckeye star, held to 9 points when Ohio barely beat Louisville 56-55 Friday, came through with 33 points and 30 rebounds. Kentucky tried to guard him with one man instead of double or triple-teaming, and it didn't work.

Two players assigned to the task found out early and their loss further emphasized the Bucks' head advantage. Although Roger Newman scored 31 points for Kentucky, the rebound figures show the difference—51-29 in Ohio State favor.

Win 31 Straight

It was the 31st straight victory and the 26th this season for Ohio State.

Cincinnati won its 20th straight after trailing Kansas State by seven points in the second half. With 6-9 Paul Hogue benched after four fouls, the Bearcats struggled back and once they gained the lead the rebounding of powerful Bob Weisenhahn and sophomore Tom Thacker kept them in control.

Utah's McGill scored 31 points and gained the Western most valuable player award as the Utes got off ahead of cold-shooting Arizona State and stayed there.

Liquor Store Holdup Probed By City Police

A Pennsylvania car believed to have been used in connection with the armed robbery of a local liquor store Saturday night was checked out yesterday but the license plates did not match the suspected car, police said.

The holdup at the Allegany Liquor Store at 207 Frederick Street which netted two young men about $275 occurred about the same time a car ran into the B&O's Capital Limited on the Bedford Street crossing at approximately 8:45 p.m.

Police said two young bandits entered the liquor store while J. Milton Dick the owner and operator was the only one present. Customers who had been in the store had gone to the scene of the accident, Dick told authorities.

One of the youths, each described as tall, slender and in their 20's, attempted to purchase a bottle of whisky, and when asked to produce evidence of his age pulled out a pistol stating, "I don't need any identification but this."

The second youth also produced a pistol, Dick informed police, adding that they proceeded to take all the bills from the cash register. Dick said the hoodlums tore out the telephone before leaving his establishment. He said last night the two men got about $275 in cash.

Investigating the robbery are Sgt. C. C. Roby and Officers Murl Boggs, R. J. Clayton and K. L. Henry.

Rugged Winter Will Bow To Spring Today

Ice Storm Hits Area Mountains

One of the worst winters in this area in many years will bow out of the weather picture at 3:32 p.m. today.

Ol' Man Winter got in a last minute punch over the weekend when a drenching rain turned into ice in the mountains and was blamed for disruption of cable television service and the cause of at least two highway accidents of a minor nature.

Authorities said the rain froze into ice as it hit the trees and utility wires in the mountains.

However there was no reported disruption of telephone service, said Robert Garner, manager of the local office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

Ice Hurts TV Reception

A spokesman for the Potomac Valley Television Company said last night the ice and drop in temperature probably was responsible for the disruption of the television service about 12:15 a.m. yesterday.

He said a solid copper center conductor in a hollow aluminum tube apparently shifted when it contracted due to a temperature drop.

The trouble spot was tracked down in the vicinity of the antenna site on Irons Mountain. With the use of electronic gear, workmen of the TV company learned the whereabouts of the troubled area.

They had the television service back to normal about an hour later, he said.

Accidents Blamed On Weather

State Police at LaVale barracks said the weather was responsible for an accident on Negro Mountain about 8 p.m. yesterday and also an accident about Siding Hill Mountain in Washington County about 11:30 p.m. No one was reported injured in either accident.

The sheriff's office at Oakland reported weather in Garrett County was "rough" Saturday night when the rain changed to ice and covered the trees and wires.

It was raining in Oakland last night and the temperature was about 40 degrees. There was intermittent rain in Cumberland yesterday and the temperature climbed to an unofficial high of 50 degrees shortly before 8 p.m.

Variable cloudiness and somewhat warmer is forecast for the first day of spring, when the temperature today is expected to range from 45 to 52 degrees in the north and 52 to 56 degrees in the south. A little warmer weather is forecast for tonight.

Senator Warns Against Change In James Plan

Delegates Weighing Aid To Localities

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A proposal that the House Ways and Means Committee revise the Administration's program of aid to local governments has drawn a sharp warning from the Maryland Senate.

Sen. Edward S. Northrop, D-Montgomery, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and majority floor leader of that chamber, said he would recommend rejection of the changes if they're adopted by the House.

Northrop said the changes would "defeat the basic purpose of the James Committee plan — to aid the areas that need it most."

"I don't think these changes would be acceptable to the Senate," he said.

Northrop commented on the report, drafted by a subcommittee headed by Del. Blair Lee, D-Montgomery, as the fiscal committees neared an end of their studies on Gov. Tawes' proposed $516-million budget.

The budget is scheduled to be reported to the floor of the legislature Thursday or Friday.

It will include more than $19 million in aid to local governments as mapped out by a Legislative Council committee headed by Sen. William S. James, D-Harford.

Basic Agreement

Lee's subcommittee endorsed basic principles of the James plan but sharply revised the formulas through which aid would flow. The subcommittee also added $337,596 to the original proposals.

It proposed that aid for school operations, through which teachers salaries can be boosted, be raised from $3.3 million to $3.1 million, and that aid for school construction be scaled down from $3 million to $1.6 million.

It recommended further "hazard" aid be distributed to all Maryland subdivisions instead of just Baltimore city and 10 counties.

The parent House Ways and Means Committee has been holding up action on the recommendations until the budget has been cleared. It was advised by the attorney general that the appropriations bill might be of doubtful constitutionality if acted on ahead of the budget.

Baltimore Would Suffer

Northrop noted that the recommended changes would deprive Baltimore city, one of the chief recipients of the aid plan, of some $400,000 and would also change the amounts to be received by other counties.

He said the changes were made to make the bill "more palatable" to some legislators who did not like the James Committee plan and said this violated agreements reached by fiscal leaders and the governor earlier this session.

Tawes submitted the James Committee program as an administration measure and has proposed that the sales tax be applied to all purchases costing over 25 cents, including now-exempt restaurant meals, to finance it. He has not commented on the Ways and Means subcommittee counter-proposals.

The money issue is one of several major matters facing the legislators as they return for the next to last full week of the 90-day session.

Other Major Issues

In other major activity this week:

The House resumes its battle over whether to add 21 more delegates for metropolitan areas and faces another in the administration's bill to convert Frostburg State Teachers College into a branch of the University of Maryland.

The House Judiciary Committee is expected to act on a Senate bill to tighten up provisions for unemployment compensation, and will hold hearings Tuesday on two bills to ban slot machines throughout the state.

The governor's supplemental budget, totaling over $10 million, is expected to be submitted to fiscal committees so they can incorporate it in the $506-million spending program he submitted early in the session.

Dr. Kaplan Says He Intended No Attack On FSTC

Against 'System,' Says Educator

Dr. Louis L. Kaplan said yesterday he had no intention of attacking the administration of Frostburg State Teachers College when he criticized the system under which teachers colleges are operated in Maryland.

Dr. Kaplan, dean of Baltimore Hebrew College and a member of the board of regents of the University of Maryland, said at a regents' meeting Friday that the real issue in the dispute over management of the Frostburg college is quality of education. He asserted then that this issue has been lost in a battle of "empire versus empire."

He was criticized by R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college, by Robert Y. Dubel, associate executive secretary of the Maryland State Teachers Association, and by Mrs. James Steele, chairman of the Maryland Citizens for Better Education.

Yesterday, Dr. Kaplan told The Associated Press that many of his remarks were taken out of context by those who had criticized him.

"I have nothing against the Frostburg administration," Kaplan said, "nor do I single out the Maryland teachers colleges for criticism. It's a system that I object to."

"One of my main objections," he continued, "is in putting elementary, secondary and college training all under one administration. There should be a system of checks and balances in education, as well as in government."

"My criticisms apply to all the Maryland state teachers colleges, although I feel Towson is better off than Frostburg or Salisbury, because of the impact of its proximity to Johns Hopkins and Goucher. To be worth anything, a college must be associated with an institution of higher learning. Without that contact, any school will dry up."

"Richer states, such as New York, can get away with running colleges themselves, but in a relatively small state like Maryland it's different."
